Annual Parish Meeting

Cllr Philipson talked a little about the work of Allendale Parish Council (APC) and being a parish councillor and encouraged people to consider putting themselves forward for one the vacancies: Being a Parish Councillor | Allendale Parish Council \(northumberlandparishes.uk\). The public were interested to know more about Allendale's Neighbourhood Development Plan and how it came about, and Cllr Crellin and Co Cllr Horncastle confirmed that:

a) Allendale Parish Council was a statutory consultee for planning applications and that it referred to policies in Allendale's Neighbourhood Development Plan (ANDP) when formally commenting on or making recommendations on applications; b) Allendale's NDP had been the first to be developed in the county and that it was four and half years in the making with consultations with local people, schools, academics, civil servants in London and local young people represented on the working group; c) 30% of the local community took part in the referendum and of those 79% were in favour of the Plan; d) planning applications were referred to Tynedale Local Area Council Planning Committee only when APC supported an application, and the planning officer did not, and vice versa (only 6-7% of applications go to Committee); e) members of the public could best influence planning officer decisions by submitting their comments to Northumberland County Council's planning portal; and f) APC would be undertaking a review of Allendale's NDP and reviewing its objectives and policies as well making the content easy to refer to and understand.

Crown Inn, Catton

On behalf of the Catton residents, that looked for Allendale Parish Council's support for registering the Crown Inn as an Asset of Community Value, Brian Donnelly appealed to Allendale Parish Council as representatives of the people of Allen Valley not to support the Crown Inn planning application (21/03672/FUL). Brian Donnelly said that Catton residents had set up a community steering group with a view to buying the Crown but after being told by the former owner that the new buyers would be re-opening the pub the community backed out. He said that Catton residents observed that changes to the Crown had already been made without planning permission and they remained concerned about the pub's future. Co Cllr Horncastle said that planning officers assess planning applications against policy only and that retrospective planning applications were common. In answer to questions relating to the status of retrospective planning applications he confirmed that there were no laws being broken and that whilst retrospective planning applications were not illegal there was some risk that people might have to undo what they have done. Cllr Crellin said that APC saw retrospective planning applications regularly and whilst he said that it did seem unusual the Council could not take punitive action and must treat those applications as it would any other. The new owners of the Crown said they were very disappointed to be the subject of a community attack and set out their plans for the Crown as described in their planning application, for change of use from public house with staff accommodation to mixed use including public house, bed and breakfast and podiatry business. Cllrs Philipson and Howard who had both recently viewed the new layout of the Crown said that the new owners had invested a lot of resources in stabilising the structure of the building and had come up with some practical solutions for their future business, and they supported the application. Cllr Galley said that it was a really hard time for pubs and that he supported publicans diversifying but questioned whether having a second podiatry practice was sustainable. He also queried whether there was sufficient WCs in the new layout. One of the current owners said that she was a practicing podiatrist with her own clients and intended to use the premises for continuing her business that offered a different service to that provided in Allendale. The other owner said that there were adequate WCs and that he would check that they were shown accurately on the new floor layout. Brian Donnelly said that the community had now applied to Northumberland County Council to register the Crown Inn as an Asset of Community Value (ACV) and asked Allendale Parish Council to support their application (see 8) below).

Speed bumps

Residents of the Denelands estate attended the meeting to request that the rumble strips were not reinstated alongside their estate. They said that the noise and vibration caused by the rumble strips was damaging to both their houses and lives causing them considerable stress. The residents said that the strips had not slowed down traffic and asked whether any monitoring had been carried out on their effectiveness. Co Cllr Horncastle said that the new traffic calming measures had come about after many years of discussion with Allendale Primary School, Allendale Village Hall, and Allendale Parish Council and that the final scheme had been decided by highways professionals at Northumberland County Council. He said that as much as he did not want the strips to be put back that until an alternative traffic calming plan was agreed to, they would have to go back for the safety of the school children. The residents and councillors discussed possible alternatives to the rumble strips, including solar-powered speed warning signs and chicanes, favoured by some of the residents, and the councillors acknowledged that the rumble strips were far from ideal, and they would continue to work with highways to find an alternative solution.
