We thank you for your valued enquiry and have pleasure in submitting our report and subsequent recommendations for the above site.

SURVEY OBSERVATIONS...

During our detailed survey of the premises the following points were established.
The pest bird species active at the premises in question are "feral pigeons."

NESTING...

There is a large resident pigeon population in the area and a percentage of these birds are present on this site.

The birds are using this site for the purpose of nesting and roosting.

The court-yard area is ideal nesting and roosting for the birds which affords them excellent nesting areas.

These birds are nesting and fouling on roof and down the brickwork, which degrade roofing materials again leading to internal leaks and associated high maintenance costs.

They can also cause significant problems with blocked gutters leading to building leaks and high maintenance costs as well as acting as a breeding ground for many types of biting and flying insects, which become very active during the summer months.

Continued ...

We would recommend 50x50mm bird netting to be erected over the court-yard area at gutter height with netting running alongside alleyway and brought down to gate.
