Case studies

Case study 1

Barbara and Geoff*, a couple from North Warwickshire have both been identified as extremely clinically vulnerable and asked to 'shield' themselves by isolating for 12 weeks.

They have no family or friends locally who can help them to get food and supplies but knew Warwickshire councils and partners were offering help. They called the hotline to find out what they could do.

The hotline operator spoke to Barbara about their needs and was able to put a few things in place to help them. The couple now has a weekly food delivery and a volunteer collected their audio books to return to the library service. During the call a fault on the phonenumber was mentioned so the hotline operator gave them advice to get priority service with their provider and an engineer has now fixed it.

Case study 2

Robert* an 80-year-old resident from Rugby borough contacted the hotline in some distress as about being told he couldn't leave his home to get food and supplies. He was able to secure a supermarket click and collect order in another town but had no means to get there and no local support.

The hotline operator explained to the Robert that he was eligible for an emergency food parcel but he did not want to take this resource from someone more in need. Instead, the hotline was able to put him in touch with his local parish council who found a volunteer to regularly collect the shopping from the supermarket.

This solution helped Robert to feel independent and in control as he is still able to choose and pay for his own food. Robert appreciated the support from the council and community who made sure his individual needs were considered to reach a good outcome for him. He said: "I'm amazed at how much you helped me and made sure my delivery came. I'm so thankful."
