Dominic Fairman has proposed a new sustrans cycle network to link various towns and villages in north Cornwall, using existing roads and trails. The parish council noted Lanhydrock's inclusion in the network but councillors raised concerns that the Reperry road could be dangerous for cyclists, being both narrow and well used by fast traffic.

Respryn Road. The parish council agreed that they'd like to take up this offer.

Cruse stated she had recently been on an interesting tour of the Suez Cornwall Energy Recovery Centre at St Dennis and offered to arrange a tour for the parish council, which the councillors were keen to take up. They expressed frustration that, despite repeatedly logging this on Cornwall Council's online report system, no long-term solution had been proposed.
