Dates for your Diary

Hothfield Parish Council next meeting 7pm 8th Jan

Hothfield Village Hall

Arts Society Egerton Painted Hall Greenwich 14th Jan 2.30pm

It was with great sadness that we learned of the sudden passing of John Coles, a long-standing and well-known resident of this village since his childhood. John had come to the village in the 1940s where his father ran the estate's farm for Lord Hothfield. Then known as 'Park Farm' the land extended past the front of the manor and beyond. John's dad was able to buy the farm from Lord Hothfield, and bred ducks, among other things. They even supplied ducks to Saudi Arabia and made a couple of visits out there to check the future home of the birds, and their Saudi customers visited Hothfield.

Over the decades John and his father have employed hundreds of local people, and often the stories told by residents and past residents include working for or knowing John. I'm privileged to have been one of the many people to have spent time with John, his wife and daughters, and to have learned a lot about the history of the village from him. John was a founding member of Hothfield History Society and latterly its Treasurer. John is being sorely missed and we're very grateful for his kindness, generosity and support for the village and its activities over many decades.

John's funeral will take place at Charing Crematorium on Friday 23rd January at 12:30, and afterwards at the village hall.

Another On-line Find! William Craik's present from Lady Hothfield

Another item of Hothfield History has been purchased via that on-line auction site, thanks to a generous discount from the bookshop. The book of "Trees and Shrubs for English Gardens" has been inscribed to William Craik from Lady Hothfield for Christmas 1903. The book was published in 1902 and so was a fairly new release. It has lots of black and white photographs, but William's copy doesn't seem to have been well read as there are no notes or highlights or damage apart from ageing.

William Craik came from Scotland (as did some other Hothfield staff including Agnes Kerr) and was head gardener on the Hothfield Place estate. He lived in the large 'Garden House' at the entrance to Church Lane, the 1891 and 1901 censuses show that his sister was living with him.

He died aged 89 in 1939 and is buried in Hothfield churchyard with his wife Lilah (the 1911 census calls her Elizah).

The school logs books show that William visited Hothfield school and was teaching the boys practical skills. Typically the girls learned housework like needlework, whilst the boys learned academic subjects like maths and science, but the log books show that some boys struggled with acaademic subjects and so practical outdoor skills were also taught such as double digging and pruning fruit trees.

The school created a small cottage garden plot and pupils also worked on the Common (as it was then) – this was noted and praised by school inspectors who recognised that these were practical skills for rural boys to learn, and a good initiative by the school.

The headteacher, Mr Fox, generally wrote very little detail in the school Log Book, but when it came to Mr Craik he recorded his visits and bestowed great praise: “I have been indebted to Mr Craik on several previous occasions for hints and advice in cultivating the school garden and he always shows the kindest spirit in addressing boys anxious to learn the subject of gardening.”

Our own publication ‘Hothfield in the 20th Century’ also records praise for Mr Craik: “In the summer of 1919 Lady Ierne Tufton, Lord Hothfield's daughter-in-law, held a function for non-commissioned officers and men from Hothfield and Westwell who had served in the Great War. About one hundred people came including wives and W.I. members.

There was tea at the Mansion ‘nothing was wanting’, then there was a tour of the gardens by the head gardener Mr. Craik who, despite the handicap of war, maintained a high standard.”

The book was sold by Cox and Budge, an on-line bookshop that specialises in signed books. Geoff Cox kindly provided a very significant discount so that we could add this book to the village archive.

He had bought the book as part of a job lot from Wye College. Was it donated to the college by William's widow? Was the book part of the college's library? – there's no evidence of a library reference or that it had a check-out card, and it doesn't seem to have been thumbed.

Friends of St Margarets Church Hothfield

We are a small group of Hothfield residents who currently arrange events throughout the year in order to raise money to support our beautiful old church.

Amongst the items we have paid for in recent years are the kitchen area at the back of the church, and the toilet. We were also able to contribute towards the cost of the new heating system in the church during the past year.

We are looking to enlarge our committee, and would like to hear from anyone who would be interested in joining us. If you need any further information about the Friends, please do call me on 01233 634191
