

West Ilsley News

November 2000

Who would have thought that the (sadly, now regular) flood in the middle of the village could ever be regarded as a good thing? There was a robbery in the village during the last flood, and the thief made off with the proceeds in a van which then broke down in the flood and was abandoned! Unfortunately the thief got away, but at least the stolen item was recovered and he lost his van! Are there lots more incidents of crime happening which we ought to let people know about in order to increase vigilance? The WIN is, of course, available for this, however, monthly publication isn't timely unless criminals only operate towards the end of the month! Does anyone have any views or ideas?

Advance notice of deadlines for the December and January WIN are shown at the end of this edition - please ensure that any events for early January are notified in the December WIN.

Church Services for November 2000:

5 th All Age Service	11.00 am
12 th Remembrance Sunday	10.55 am
19 th Family Communion	9.30 am

HARVEST FESTIVAL

Thanks to all who decorated the church so beautifully. As, usual, the produce went to Willows Edge, a residential home in Newbury. Thanks are passed on from the staff and residents there.

HARVEST SUPPER

A change in format this year saw a slide show and talk follow the supper (to its usual excellent standard), given by Dr. Paul Sievers on his recent travels around New Zealand. If you weren't there, you missed a good evening. I hope we will be able to invite him back next year but if there are any budding after dinner speakers, please get in touch...

QUIZ NIGHT – 3rd NOVEMBER AT 7.30 pm IN THE VILLAGE HALL

When you read this, it still may not be too late to enter so don't hesitate – it's worth a 'phone call to me (281625). £5.00 per person, including ploughman's supper. It is good fun and raises much needed funds for the church.

PRAM SERVICE Alison Banks (281705)
ALL SAINTS CHURCH Liz Dray (281704)

The next service will take place in the church on Monday 20th November at 11am. The services are for 0-5 year olds plus parent, grandparent or carer etc and last for half an hour, followed by refreshments for the children. This informal service includes lots of songs with instruments for the children to play plus a short story based on a theme. The theme for November is "Saints." Everyone welcome.

PARKING

Kay Green has asked that people do NOT park at the entrance to Church Way as last week the bin-men were unable to get their truck down the lane to collect refuse. Fortunately they did return the next day to remedy the situation but will not perhaps be as flexible next time!

ANNOUNCEMENT

Charles and Maggie Taylor are pleased to announce the arrival of FINN PATRICK, a boy weighing 91bs 1oz. on October 3rd 2000, making a full and final complement of four! Both mum and son doing well.

NATURE NOTES

Seasons of mist and mellow fruitfulness.

In summer we rarely pay attention to the colour of leaves, but as Winter approaches Nature has one last fling and we are treated to a magnificent display as leaves change colour and fall.

Plants are green because they contain a pigment called chlorophyll and it is probably the best known of all the plant pigments. Pigments are vital to plants as they help to trap sunlight to provide the energy to convert carbon dioxide and water to sugars. During the growing season chlorophyll is continually being produced and broken down as part of its natural cycle. However as day length begins to shorten chlorophyll production starts to slow down and stop. Eventually all the chlorophyll is destroyed and the other colours, which have been present but unnoticed, show through. These pigments are usually a mixture of carotenoids and anthocyanins and give us the beautiful red and orange colours that look so magnificent in the Autumn sunshine. Cool temperatures can prolong this show while a frost can diminish it by killing the leaves and stopping the colour change.

The veins that carry fluids into and out of the leaf gradually close off as a layer of cells forms in the vein at the base of the leaf and block it, so preventing flow into and out of the leaf. When the block is complete the leaf falls off.

PRISONER OF ZENDA Watermill Theatre

In recent months I have written several reviews of productions at the Watermill Theatre, always with a final admonition – if you haven't savoured the delights of the place, then GO!

Last night we saw "The Prisoner of Zenda" – and never could my earlier advice have been better taken. The story, as many will know from the four film versions shot between 1913 and 1987, centres on the extraordinary likeness between the future Ruritanian King and his cousin Rassendyll. Rassendyll is visiting Ruritania purely by co-incidence and is discovered in a wooded glade by the King's aide, Fritz van Tarlenheim. The future King, known throughout the Kingdom for his alcoholic intake, meets our hero and promptly drinks himself into a stupor, though this with the help of some drugged concoction from his brother, the dastardly 'Black' Michael; inevitably this means the Prince cannot attend his own coronation and Rassendyll is called upon to stand in at the ceremony to save the Kingdom – and Princess Flavia, the Princes' girlfriend - from Black Michael's treachery.

There are only five players – including David Peacock, who starred so successfully in a riot of a play (reviewed earlier this year) called "Up 'n Under". The limitations on numbers means that each member wore (quite literally) several different guises and each contributed to a running dialogue which – though a little confusing until you got the hang of it – told the story from beginning to end. Along the way, several of the characterisations were truly wonderful – the simpering Cardinal, the alluring "women" – the sight of large Army Captains putting on skirts and shawls and transforming themselves into fawning women was hilarious; Black Michael's sinister scenes, and in particular Fritz, who surely must have spent time in the Army, so perfect a Company Sergeant Major would he make. Couple this with the most astonishingly clever scene shifting on what is a tiny, in-the-round stage and – my personal favourite – the sword duels and their inevitable blood letting, and you have nearly two hours of honestly superb entertainment for the price of a couple of drinks.

One small criticism – on occasion the music was too loud and certainly all four members of our party had difficulty hearing Princess Flavia give an impassioned update at one point.

There were perhaps 50 people in the audience – on previous visits we have gone on a Thursday night which for reasons which escape me seem almost always to have full houses – perhaps Wednesdays are too "mid-week?" As an actor it must be somewhat disappointing to play to such a small audience, though no doubt many nights will be to sell-out crowds, but if you haven't booked yet and really do want to see a treat, the play ends on November 11th – Box Office number is 01635 46044. As I said at the beginning – GO! – you will not be disappointed. Steve Price

THE COMPTON PLAYERS

Compton Players' next production, described as an adult comedy, is due to be performed on 9th, 10th and 11th November at Compton Coronation Hall, Burrell Road, Compton. Doors open at 7.00 pm for curtain-up at 7.30 pm. The comedy entitled "Dead Funny" is by Terry Johnson, and due to both the content and explicit language, is NOT suitable for children. Tickets are £4 (Senior Citizens £2) box office is 01635 578821
